

JOHN WALKER TAKES A SLAM AT THE MILITIA
AND THE I. W. W. AT SUNDAY MEETING

THE DAY BOOK

An Adless Daily Newspaper.

N. D. Cochran,
Editor and Publisher.
500 South Peoria St.

Tel. Monroe 353.
Automatic 51-422.
By Mail, 50 Cents a Month.

VOL. 3, NO. 66.

Chicago, Monday, Dec. 15, 1913

ONE CENT

FAIR EMPLOYEES STRIKE AGAINST SLAVING ON SUNDAY

Fifty Clerks Rebel at Mrs. Lehmann's Store Against Being Paid Only With a Supper for Laboring All Day Sunday—Ed Lehmann Admits It's One of the Store's Habits.

The State street department store owners seem to have already forgotten the exposures made by the O'Hara Vice Commission when their system of working their employes was shown up as a thing of horror.

Already the big owners are taking advantage of their underpaid girls and men and forcing them to do extra work in order to handle the Christmas rush.

One of the biggest violators this year is The Fair, where Mrs. Lehmann is proving that she believes what she says when she told a reporter from The Day Book that department store girls weren't worth any more than they were getting.

And so, believing in that statement, she has evidently set out to force girls to earn the meager sum they are getting by making them work on Sundays.

For three Sundays 125 men, women and girls have been forced to come to work on Sundays, fearing if they didn't they would lose their jobs. They must do this because the mighty firm of Lehmann will not allow them to take enough time during the week days to fix up their stock. And The Fair refuses to pay the clerks for this extra work.

Yesterday about 50 of the gamer clerks rebelled and their was great